MASTER'S DEGREE PROGRAMS

Get the Right Professional Start

There is no better way to launch your career than with a master's degree from Vanderbilt's Peabody College, the nation's third ranked graduate school of education by U.S. News & World Report. You can apply to many of Peabody's master's programs as early as the spring of your junior year and, upon acceptance, begin taking graduate courses even before you receive your bachelor's degree. We will help you devise the plan that best suits your career goals.

Your investment in a master's program at Vanderbilt's Peabody College will help you build a better future in these key ways:

- You will continue your studies in Vanderbilt's stimulating and supportive atmosphere with faculty members who are nationally recognized leaders in their fields.
- You will join an international network of leaders in the fields of education and human development and will make valuable connections to professionals in business and nonprofit management as well as education.
- Your master's degree and the expertise you will acquire in your advanced study at Peabody will open doors to a rewarding career in a field where you can really make a difference.
- Your tuition cost for professional study at Peabody will be significantly lower than undergraduate tuition.
- You will earn a higher starting salary and be well positioned for career advancement.

"The networking is amazing, and the practicum experiences set me apart from people who haven't been through the sort of program you find at Peabody." —Jemma Robertson

This is a critical time to become involved in the challenges that face our schools, our businesses, our government and nonprofit agencies, and our health and human services systems. There is no better place to prepare for this kind of important work than at Vanderbilt's Peabody College. Your commitment to furthering your education will bring career rewards, and the value of your master's degree will be evident from the start.
