Saudi Arabia is building what is intended to be the world’s tallest building reaching up to 1km (3,281 feet) high upon completion. Jeddah Tower is only the start of what is intended to be an entire city located along the Red Sea. It is expected that such a structure will greatly increase the amount of tourism in the country.

Dr. Alfuhayd works for the Princess Nourah University in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. From participating in the Hubert H. Humphrey Fellowship Program, she hopes to gain the necessary experience to be one of her country’s sufficient and demonstrative higher education leaders. In her work, she aims to support research and innovation for the betterment of Saudi universities and the community at large.
