We really special.
remarked, “We enjoyed having Chloe around. She made the last half of basketball make a difference as a leader in her community. Her supervisor, Danielle Eckert and career paths that would allow her to engage with diverse groups of people.
With an outgoing and naturally supportive personality, Chloe hopes to pursue goals really like working with people, and I especially liked helping Mr. C.

“My favorite part of the internship so far is getting to help the spirit squad because I creating flyers, advertising the games, and promoting fan spirit.
During her pre-game preparations, Chloe has been involved with the marketing team equipment for the cheer and dance team, and helping out with the mascot, Mr. C.

“Collecting the pizzas to give away during the game, positioning the signs and other with various responsibilities including picking up and tossing t-shirts during timeouts, assisting with pre-game preparations and in-game events. Chloe has been tasked internship.
Chloe worked with the squad at women and men’s basketball games, worked with the Vanderbilt Spirit Squad this semester in their first inclusive for our student’s many unique and diverse internships. Chloe Young, freshman,

We are half-way through the semester now, which also represents the halfway mark semester in this “The Blues” class.
Andrew has faced adversity at times like everyone does, citing the heavy workload of Blues music and try to play like that.”

“I have learned about many more artists that sing blues, like Johnny Cash, Bonnie and Andrew has adapted what he has learned in this classes to this personal piano

“The Blues artist such as Ma Rainey and Robert Johnson, emphasizing important topics like the relation of blues to African American poetry and fiction.
Blair School of Music and taught by Professor Robert Fry. The class studies famous piano. This semester, Andrew enrolled in the VU Class, “The Blues,” offered by the Lloyd, freshman, has done just that by expanding upon this passion for music and the and extracurricular activities, students find new interests in the classroom.
