Associate or Full Professor Position in Consequential Technology and Learning and Director of the Learning Incubator: a Vanderbilt Endeavor

Vanderbilt University’s Peabody College

The Department of Teaching and Learning of Peabody College invites applications for an associate or full professor in Consequential Technology and Learning and the Director of the Learning Incubator: a Vanderbilt Endeavor (LIVE). For a draft of the vision and mission of LIVE please see: https://peabody.vanderbilt.edu/research/live.php

We seek a renowned senior scholar whose research is grounded in the Learning Sciences with broad interests in how technology can advance life-long and life-wide learning. Ideal candidates will have an established track record of envisioning, designing, and testing cutting-edge technologies and experience managing complex projects. Additionally, because the vision of LIVE extends to life-long learning across formal, informal and corporate settings, preference will be given to scholars whose research has been carried out in multiple contexts. Finally, we seek a colleague who will be committed to advancing critical scholarship of educational practice and working with the increasingly diverse communities of Vanderbilt University and the city of Nashville.

Successful applicants must have a strong record of publication and external research funding. Additionally, the successful candidate will help lead, initiate, and participate in collaborative research projects, teacher education and/or community partnerships as well as contribute to our undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral programs. These include: Learning, Teaching and Diversity (Ph.D.), Learning and Diversity in Urban Settings (M.Ed.), Learning and Design (M.Ed.), and our teacher credentialing programs.

We will review applications beginning April 15, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Applicants should submit: a letter of interest, up to three publications (or manuscripts in progress), a current vita and the names of three scholars who will write letters of recommendation. The committee will request three letters of recommendation from a small group of finalists. Please apply at the following link: https://apply.interfolio.com/86959

Questions may be addressed to: Dr. Noel Enyedy, Chair, LIVE Search Committee, noel.d.enyedy@vanderbilt.edu. Prospective applicants are encouraged to visit the Vanderbilt Peabody College website at https://peabody.vanderbilt.edu/
