Email: maury.nation@vanderbilt.edu
Office Hours: 1:00–3:00 p.m. Wednesday or by appointment

Course Overview
This course presents an overview of current theories of counseling and psychotherapy with a special focus on the philosophical assumptions, key concepts, techniques, and practical applications of each approach. Each of the theories will be examined critically such that the student can begin to formulate an integrated personal theory of counseling which could be applicable to both agency and school settings.

This course will provide students with the opportunity to:

1. Critically examine the basic philosophical assumptions that underlie each theory of counseling.
2. Acquire knowledge of the prevailing theories of counseling so that they can be compared and contrasted. (CACREP 2.F.5.a, 2.F.3.c, SC 3.f)
3. Critically examine each of the major theories of counseling within the framework of her/his own background, values, and professional goals.
4. Critically examine theories and etiology of addictions and addictive behavior.
5. Begin the process of developing one’s own theoretical positions. (CACREP 2.F.5.n)
6. Demonstrate an understanding of the impact of race, ethnic, gender, sexual orientation, and cultural differences in the counseling relationship. (CACREP 2.F.2.c, 2.F.2.d)

Prerequisites
Students should have at minimum a basic knowledge of personality theory and/or abnormal psychology. An undergraduate course in counseling, abnormal psychology, or theories of personality is preferred.
Class Assignments

Case Discussion—60 points
Working in small groups, one class during the semester you will develop a case conceptualization based on a particular theory and present it to the class. The conceptualization/presentation will include a description of the client, the presenting problem, the conceptualization of the problem (i.e., based on the theory how/why did the problem develop? How might the problem be addressed in therapy—therapy goals/interventions?), and descriptions or examples of how therapy might proceed using the relevant theory. Ideally the illustration should address any concerns regarding diversity/multiculturalism and the application of the theory to the case. The goal of the illustration should be deepen understanding of theory by demonstrating the ability to apply it to cases.

Case Conceptualizations—100 points each/200 points total
As a way of integrating information presented throughout the semester, you will write two case conceptualizations. The details of the case will be provided three weeks before the due date. Using information from the case, you will write a two- to three-page single-spaced paper that articulates your conceptualization of the case. Details regarding the content and structure of the conceptualization are provided separately. Note: You should not consult your peers prior to turning in the case conceptualization. It should reflect only your ideas about how to approach the case.

Quizzes—20 points each/240 points total
An online quiz covering the readings for that week will be posted online the week before the topic is discussed in class. You may complete the quiz anytime that week, but you should complete the quiz before the live session. You will have 25 minutes to complete the quiz. The questions are short answer and should be able to be answered with one to two paragraphs or in bullet format. The Grading
Grading will be based on a points system. The distribution of points is as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Component</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Quizzes (12 @ 20 points each)</td>
<td>240</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Case Discussion</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Case Conceptualization Paper</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>500</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A final grade will be assigned based on the percentage of points earned:

- 94% or higher: A
- 90–93%: A–
- 87–89%: B+
- 80–86%: B
- 77–79%: C+
- 70–76%: C
- 60–69%: D
- 59% or below: F

Academic Honesty/Honor Code Violations

Vanderbilt University places a high priority on and strives to uphold the highest standards of academic integrity while protecting the rights of students and faculty. Should the instructor find evidence of cheating, plagiarism, other inappropriate assistance in work presented by a student, or any other violation of the honor the code, the student will receive no points on the assignment/exam and will be referred to the Honor Council for further disciplinary action. A list of honor code violations is included below.

Violations of the Honor Code are cause for disciplinary actions imposed by the appropriate honor council.

The following are included as violations:

- Falsifying or cheating on a report, paper, exercise, problem, test or examination, tape, film, or computer program submitted by a student to meet course requirements. Cheating includes the use of unauthorized aids (such as crib sheets, discarded computer programs, the aid of another person on a take-home exam, etc.); copying from another student’s work; soliciting, giving, and/or receiving unauthorized aid orally or in writing; or similar action contrary to the principles of academic honesty.

- Plagiarism on an assigned paper, theme, report, or other material submitted to meet course requirements. Plagiarism is defined as incorporating into one’s own work the work of another without properly indicating that source. A full description of plagiarism is given in the section below.

- Failure to report a known or suspected violation of the Code in the manner prescribed.

- Any action designed to deceive a member of the faculty, a staff member, or a fellow student regarding principles contained in the Honor Code, such as securing an answer to a problem for one course from a faculty member in another course when such assistance has not been authorized.

- Submission of work prepared for another course without specific prior authorization of the instructors in both courses.
- Use of texts or papers prepared by commercial or noncommercial agents and submitted as a student’s own work.
- Falsification of results of a study or research.

The Honor Code Applied to Preparation of Papers

- Papers are to express the original thoughts of the student. If a topic for a paper has been discussed fully among students prior to an assignment, then the students should consult the instructor about writing on that particular topic.
- Failure to indicate the source of ideas, expressions, phrases, or sentences constitutes plagiarism.
- A student may not submit papers substantially the same in content for credit in more than one course without specific and prior permission of all instructors concerned.
Course Logistics

Class meetings will include a variety of methods of instruction including (but not limited to) lecture, small and large group discussion, simulations, video/audio recordings, and role-plays. Class sessions may cover material not included in your readings. Also, given the amount of material in your readings, class sessions will not cover all the material contained in your readings. In other words, do not depend on the lecture/class sessions to substitute for the readings.

To get the most out of the class, please be prepared to participate in the class sessions. Questions and discussion are invited and welcomed. In the case of disagreements/differing opinions (which are expected), all participants are expected to convey respect for people and ideas and to avoid the use of offensive or inflammatory language.

At times this semester, we may discuss topics that could be disturbing and even traumatizing to some students. If you feel the need to leave the live session during any of these discussions, either for a short time or for the rest of the session, you may do so without academic penalty (please do keep up with any academic material you miss and see me afterward so that I can make sure you are okay). You will, however, be responsible for any material you miss. If you ever wish to discuss your personal reactions to this material, either with the class or with me, I would welcome such a conversation as an appropriate part of your professional development. If you are having these reactions frequently, I will request a meeting to discuss resources that might be useful in managing these situations. Learning to manage personal reactions to potentially disturbing material that our clients discuss is an important part of preparing to be a counselor.

Also, it is possible that sensitive topics may come up in class, office hours, and consultations before/after class. Be aware that faculty members, course instructors, and academic advisors are “responsible employees” (also referred to as “mandatory reporters”) and are legally obligated to report incidents of sexual misconduct that we learn about to our Title IX coordinator. That is, all faculty must report allegations of sexual misconduct and intimate partner violence to the Title IX coordinator. This policy means that faculty members can and will provide support, assistance, and referrals as needed if a student has experienced or is experiencing sexual harassment or intimate partner violence. However, if a student discloses that they have been a victim of sexual misconduct, faculty cannot serve as a confidential resource to the student. Resources on campus that offer limited or full confidentiality include the Psychological & Counseling Center, (615) 322-2571, and the Project Safe Center, (615) 875-0660.

Missing Class

If you miss a class, it is your responsibility to obtain notes and materials discussed or disseminated in class. You will receive full credit if you attend all classes and are prepared. However, multiple absences will result in point deductions. The second absence will result in a 5-point deduction and an additional 10 points will be deducted for a third absence. Since participation is an integral part of the course, more than three absences may result in withdrawal from the course. If you anticipate missing class, notify the instructor prior to class if you are going to be absent. Please send an email that has “absent” in the subject line.

Distractions

Studies of learning have shown the importance of being present in the learning environment not only physically and intellectually but also interpersonally and intrapersonally. Therefore, it is requested that you avoid audio or visual distractions during the live sessions. These include engaging in behavior on video/audio streams that is not consistent with class participation (e.g., speaking with third parties, telephone conversations, etc.). Distractions will be addressed with a warning for the first incidence. Additional incidences will result in percentage points deductions from your final grade (second incidence = 2 percentage points; subsequent incidences = 3 percentage points).
Diversity Statement
As we all grow and develop as people and professionals, we constantly strive to improve ourselves in numerous areas of our lives. We value the diversity of our learning community and consider peoples’ varied identities and differences as strengths and resources upon which to build community and facilitate human development. HDC students and faculty welcome your informal and formal suggestions for improvement of our classroom, program and university climate and culture, as well as course materials and content.

Disability Services
Vanderbilt University is committed to providing reasonable accommodations for all persons with disabilities that may affect your ability to complete course assignments or otherwise satisfy course requirements. If you may require accommodations, please contact the Office of Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action, and Disability Services at Baker Building, Suite 108, (615) 322–4705 (V/TDD), to discuss and determine any accommodations. If you have a disability for which you may request accommodation in Vanderbilt University classes and have not contacted them, please do so as soon as possible. You are also encouraged to see your instructor(s) privately in regard to this matter, ideally no later than the second week of the semester, so that we can ensure that your needs are met appropriately and in a timely manner.

Written Assignment Format and Deadlines
All written assignments are to be typewritten, in a 12-point typeface, with one-inch margins. They should conform to the format found in the APA Publication Manual (6th ed.) unless otherwise indicated. Recommended paper lengths do not include title pages or references. Graduate-level writing is expected. Therefore, points will be deducted for poor grammar, consistent spelling mistakes, or failure to comply with APA format. Papers should be submitted prior to the beginning of the live session on the due date. Papers received after the due date/time will be penalized 10% per day (this includes papers that are not ready to be turned in until the end of the live session).
